Bristol City Attorney to Head State Association

Bristol's city attorney Jack Hyder has been elected president of the Tennessee Municipal Attorneys Association.

The association is a professional organization whose membership consists of attorneys who represent the 347 cities and towns across the state.

Hyder was elected at the group's recent meeting in Memphis. He succeeds Alyson Eberting of Knoxville.

"Jack is a well respected member of our organization with a broad knowledge of municipal law," said Dennis Huffer, the association's executive director in Nashville. "He is frequently called upon by our members for his expertise as they deal with issues facing their cities."

Bill Sorah, Interim City Manager said, "Jack has been instrumental in guiding the city through many complex issues during his tenure with the city. The city is fortunate to have an individual with his level of expertise on staff. We are very pleased to see that his peers recognize his expertise and have chosen him to lead the organization."

Hyder is a Bristol native and a graduate of King University and the University of Tennessee College of Law.
